McGill Undertakes $9,000,000 Plan Of Enlargement

New Ground Purchased For R.V.C.

McGill University is going to expand its accommodation and vocational facilities to the tune of $9,000,000, according to the statement prepared by P. W. MacFarlane, superintendent of university buildings, and authorized for publication by Dr. F. Cyril James. At present, projects involving an expenditure of approximately $2,004,750 are underway, while an additional program which will cost $5,875,150 will be completed before 1948.

The Royal Victoria College for co-eds is to be enlarged to three times its present size. Having acquired all the ground bounded by University, Sherbrooke, and Shuter streets south of the Montreal High School, the university authorities will extend R.V.C. over the whole area.

Two men's residences are also to be enlarged.

KINDERGARTEN POLITICS

Minister Ian Mackenzie's short address to McGill veterans and non-veteran students in Moyse Hall on Friday turned many a politically-sensitive stomach.

After the McGill Daily build-up, under the heading "Will Defence Vets' Charter in Moyse Hall" and the report that "he is ready and willing to try and answer any question to do with either the Government's veteran or general policies," Mackenzie offered nothing but a wasted hour of reminiscences, rhetoric, platitudes, and evasions.

To veterans back from fighting fronts around the world, he offered Barry's great speech on courage. To the question on the Government's present attitude towards increased maintenance grants, in view of the more comprehensive statistics available, the rising costs of living and the increase in the number of veterans leaving universities, he replied that there is to be a meeting in Ottawa on that subject shortly.

To a further question on his own personal opinion towards increased grants, he had only the reply "I'm a Scot." To a question on milk subsidies, he answered that it was out of his department. To a veteran, past the fifty-year mark, still seeking employment at a better rate than 36 cents an hour and turned down by Government departments on account of age, he offered sympathy.

The time available may have been short, but Minister Mackenzie did not use it to the best advantage. University students, and especially veteran students, could not and cannot appreciate kindergarten politics.

UNIVET RE-OPENS!

Student veterans, hard-pressed financially, will welcome the news that UniVet Enterprises is to re-open shortly. An aggressive four-man student vet executive, appointed by the Vet Society has already completed plans for an extensive advertising campaign to find part-time work for veterans at McGill.

From well-informed sources comes word that University officials are "reasonably certain" that a McGill Employment Bureau, serving both veteran and non-veteran students, will supersede UniVet Enterprises and the present Employment Service in the Union, sometime next year. When the new organization begins to function, it will provide part-time work, and take on the additional and important service of placing graduating students in full time jobs. UniVet is filling in until organization plans are completed.

For vets, with strict limitations on available working time, UniVet will try to find jobs to spare hours between lectures, evenings or on week-ends.

HIST. SOCIETY WILL PRESENT GUEST SPEAKER

Money and Banking
Subject of Talk
By S.R. Noble

Mr. S. R. Noble, O.B.E., will be guest speaker at a joint meeting of the McGill and R.V.C. Historical Societies, on Monday evening, November 18th, at 8.30 p.m., in the R.V.C. Common Room.

Mr. Noble is considered to be an outstanding authority on the subject of his address, "Money and Banking in the Interpretation of History". He has achieved international recognition as an economist and is at present General Manager of the Industrial Development Bank, which he organized and established.

This Bank, a novel institution in Canada, is a very important factor in the great industrial expansion of the Dominion today, having been set up to loan money at low interest rates to new and worthwhile industrial enterprises.

Mr. Noble, born in 1887, became connected with the Royal Bank of Canada at Fredericton, N.B., in 1903, and was transferred to the head office at Montreal in 1907. In 1917 he was appointed General Inspector of Foreign Branches and in his connection he travelled widely, conducting much of the Bank's business abroad.

In 1921 he became General Supervisor of the Cuban Branches, and in 1922, at the age of 35, Assistant General Manager of the Royal Bank of Canada.

During the Second World War, Mr. Noble procured leave of absence from the Royal Bank and filled several important posts for the Federal Government at Ottawa, among these Vice President of the Prices Stabilization Corporation and Special Advisor to the War Time Prices and Trade Board. He was also Sugar Administrator for the Dominion Government, a position which he still holds.

In addition to his official duties Mr. Noble contributed articles to several economic journals and was selected to write the Canadian contributory article for a collection of essays on Monetary Theory presented to Professor Irving Fisher, Head of the Department of Economics at Yale University. Chosen to write these articles, which were later published in book form, were the leading economists from as many countries as possible.

In addition to his positions in the economic field, Mr. Noble is President of the Canadian West Indies League and Vice President of the Canadian Political Science Association.

McGill and R.V.C. Historical Societies consider themselves very fortunate in having as their guest speaker a practising banker and economist theist with the wealth of experience possessed by Mr. Noble.

Garfinkle Elected Dawson Hillel Head

Last night the Hillel Counsellorship at Dawson held an election meeting under the guidance of Rabbi Samuel Cass and Bernie Lefell, president of the Hillel Foundation at McGill. Those elected were Hershey Garfinkle for president; Bob Usher, first vice-president; Alvin Boyarsky, second vice-president; Bob Shulman, secretary; and Sid Morris, treasurer.

Rabbi Cass closed the meeting by announcing that the next gathering would be held on Tuesday, November 19th at seven o'clock. He said that he would try to have a guest speaker. All members asked to attend and to bring their friends.

Vets Elect Executive; Seek Benefits Boost

Wolfville, N.S. (CUP) — The Acadia Veterans Society Group held their first meeting last week and elected their executive of three men and one woman. This Society of Vet students are keenly interested in veteran affairs. They have no campus problems such as housing, for places are provided for both married and single students. They are more concerned about an increase in benefits, the continuation of students who fail to make the top 25 per cent., and increased time to decide on their course of study. These are controlled by Government ruling in DVA however, and not much can be done by an individual society.

Vets Housing Committee Meets Today

Mitch Bourke, Housing Director for the Veterans' Society, will report on the present situation of housing accommodation at a meeting of the Housing Committee in the Music Room of the Union at 5 o'clock today, Wednesday. All student veterans who are having difficulty in obtaining suitable accommodation have been urged to attend this meeting and also all student veterans who are willing to assist the Housing Director. Veterans attending are requested to come prepared to discuss the actual details of their needs so that definite action can be taken at once.

Survey of the questionnaires indicates that 140 student veterans indicated varying degrees of dissatisfaction with their present accommodation; this represents about 43 per cent. of the total number of veterans registered at McGill. Reasons given are, uncongenial surroundings; limited space; excessive costs and distance from the University. In general the dissatisfaction is equally divided between married and single veterans.

Both single and double rooms are available on Sherbrooke street in the vicinity of the University at rates of $4 and $5 a week. Further details will be given at the meeting, at which representatives from the various housing and resident centres of the University will be present to report on the situations at their respective places.

ISS National Secretary Will Speak Here

Gordon Campbell, National Executive Secretary of the International Students' Service, will speak to members of the Students' Executive Council and NFCUS on Friday, November 15, in the Union Ballroom. Mr. Campbell will explain for the first time the activities of the service during the last year, towards which $1,500 was donated by the Students' Society of McGill University.

Chairman Clem Beauchamp of the NFCUS has also announced that he will soon be visiting Toronto to help draw up the Agenda for the National Conference of the NFCUS. The Conference will be held at Hart House, on December 27-29, at which several McGill students will be present.

In the meantime, the executive of the McGill NFCUS committee is meeting at one o'clock today with the chairman of the sub-committees. The budget for the year will be discussed, as well as the possibilities of obtaining the Book Exchange as a permanent headquarters.

Commerce Students Hold Dinner Tonight

This evening the Commerce Undergraduate Society sponsors its initial dinner meeting of the season at 6:15 p.m. in the Grill Room of the Union. Mr. Frank Gates, C.A. President of the Quebec Society of Chartered Accountants will address this meeting on some of the highlights of the accounting profession. These dinner meetings have been arranged to give Commerce students an opportunity to meet leading men in the various fields which they may wish to enter upon graduation.

The executive is reported to be satisfied with the response to the ticket sale, with but half dozen remaining. The sale of these will continue at the Union or from Mike Townsend, Bob Paterson or George Woods.

Vets May Register
For Spare-Time
Employment

Monday, November 18, will mark the re-opening of UniVet Enterprises Association, a non-profit organization for the procurement of part-time summer and holiday employment for McGill veterans. In existence last year, the organization is backed by the Student Vet Society and approved by University officials.

A two-day membership campaign is being instituted today to be followed by an extensive campaign for part-time work. Convenient registration desks are to be found in the Arts, Engineering and Union buildings. Registration will be carried on between 2:30 and 5:30 today and Thursday. After Thursday, all those wishing to become members must go to the UniVet office in the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium.

Only student veterans can apply. There is a registration fee of $1.00 to cover the cost of the advertising campaign and any incidentals. Registration consists of filling out a questionnaire and term schedule. From this a composite list will be made up of the number of requests for each class and type of employment as well as its duration.

The new UniVet Executive is as follows:
President—Ernie Temple.
Vice-President—John Pousette.
Treasurer—Leon Lipson.
Advertising—Ernie Lasch.

The UniVet office is located in Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium. It will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily from November on, to secure applications for part-time employment throughout the city.

The volume of requests has necessitated the hiring of a full-time secretary. This expense, along with the telephone answering system, telephone bills, advertising office supplies, etc., cannot be met without funds, and it has been decided to take a commission of 10 per cent. on temporary employment and 5 per cent. on employment lasting more than two months. The organization is non-profit; all excess funds will remain in the UniVet coffers. The books are always open for inspection.

The president, Ernie Temple, emphatically states that activities and services will be as extensive as the funds will permit. "Dishonesty on the part of any member will affect us all, so let us all work together honestly and diligently to make UniVet Enterprises an example of veterans' ability to other universities all over the continent" he added.

Colonial Empires

McGill Debaters Meet Defeat By Montreal Board of Trade

In a spirited debate last night the resolution "Colonial Empires Are a Threat to World Peace", upheld by two representatives of McGill was defeated by the two representatives of the Montreal Board of Trade. Debating for McGill were J. M. Monk and C. R. Butterworth and for the Board of Trade, Messrs. Byers and Savage. Chairman was H. M. Banfill.

Mr. Monk opened by defining a colony as an outlying possession with its own government yet under a central government. His definition of a threat followed "any disruption of peace at all is a threat to world peace". He then made the point that three-quarter billion people who are in colonies over the globe can hardly have equality and political freedom as is outlined in the Atlantic Charter.

As an example, he mentioned that General de Gaulle gave Algeria its freedom, then changed his mind and sent in troops to protect them. When Algeria protested, more troops were sent and several cities raided. "In modern times French Indo-China, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Palestine and India

Tickets On Sale Monday

JUNIOR PROM

Montreal Escorts
To Play at Ball
In December

Official word was received this evening that tickets for the Junior Prom will go on sale next Monday, November 18.

The Prom Committee under the chairmanship of Gordon Pfeiffer, decided that tickets will be offered first of all to the juniors of each faculty. In this connection, the class representatives of the various faculties will be announced in Friday's Daily. These will be the sole people handling tickets for the first few days of next week.

To facilitate the sale of tickets in the larger faculties, booths will be set up for students of Arts and Science and R.V.C. The locale of these booths will also appear in Friday's Daily.

As is the custom at the Junior Prom, tickets will cost $5. The wearing of corsages is optional, and they will not be provided at the dance.

In response to the queries of a good number of vets, inquiries have been made of the armed services with the object of obtaining permission for uniforms to be worn at the prom. At present permission has been received from the Army and Navy while the agreement of the Air Force is expected momentarily.

News about the Montreal Escorts has been increasing in frequency. Comment from the formal at Macdonald, where they played, reports that they were one of the 'sweetest bands' ever to grace the rostrum there. Bill Russell, versatile pianist put in a guest appearance at the 'McGill Speaks' broadcast and impressed all listening with his ability.

McMaster Seniors Now Wear Gowns

Hamilton, Nov. 12. — (CUP) — At McMaster University gowns must now be worn by all fourth year students under penalty of a fine. This ruling is the result of a decision, passed by majority vote at the Senior meeting held last year, and ratified by the Student Council.

Gowns must be worn at all lectures, in the libraries and the upper halls of the two main university buildings. Failure to comply with this decree is recognized as an infraction of Student Government rules, and is an offense subject to fines, and if necessary, more drastic penalties.

R. Caplan Addresses Literary Guild Today

The St. James Literary Society will present a talk by Mr. Rupert Caplan, Supervisor of Production for the C.B.C. on "Certain Aspects of Radio Broadcasting." Mr. Caplan will speak to the Society today at 8.15 p.m.

Mr. Caplan has been active in the theatre and in Canadian Radio for many years. He has acted under the direction of Eugene O'Neill in New York, was director of the Montreal Repertory Theatre, the Montreal Theatre Guild, and has directed the Victory Loan shows, and many outstanding dramatic features for the C.B.C.

Mr. Caplan intends to discuss radio writing and literary standards in his talk on Tuesday.

National Meet Of CAMSI On Thursday

A four-day conference of delegates from nine Canadian medical schools and representatives from several large teaching hospitals will begin this morning in the Medical Building. The conference has been convoked in order to discuss the problems pertaining to medical citizenship, interne conditions and pay, a medical film bureau, and the affiliation of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes with the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. J. F. Macintosh, Secretary of the Medical Faculty of McGill University, will welcome the delegates at the first day's luncheon. Following the dinner Thursday night, Dr. Jonathan C. Meakin will address the delegation speaking on "Future Trends in Medicine."

The first day of the conference will be devoted almost exclusively to reports that members of the National Executive and the delegates will deliver. These delegates are bringing reports of their schools' activities and problems which will be of major interest to the entire group.

A broadcast by CAMSI on the program "This Week" will be made on Saturday, November 16, over the CBC at 7:45 p.m. Miss Honor M. Kidd, a fourth-year medical student at McGill University, and Editor-in-Chief of the CAMSI Journal, will discuss CAMSI and Medical Education.

The conference will close with two tours in connection with hospital work.

A fiery entrance was then made into the debate by Mr. Savage, asserting that empires segregate wars and keep them in separate camps and don't let them spread. "Revolts are subjugated by the mother country in question without bringing in other powers."

As apt in his favour he mentioned that Newfoundland had left the empire and then reentered of her own accord. He closed saying, "We feel our opponents have not established that all colonies are a (Continued on Page Four)

Show to Take Place Early In February

It was announced at a meeting of the Red and White Revue Executive on Saturday night that this year the show would be staged during the first week in February in Moyse Hall.

The final production dates have not yet been announced, as it is hoped that an extra performance will be given this year to accommodate the Dawson students. Stating that this year the Revue is being staged about one month earlier than usual, the Producer, Eugene Jousse, explained that this is the only week that Moyse Hall is available, and as a result the whole business of producing the show will have to be speeded up.

EXECUTIVE.

The members of the Executive who have been appointed to date are Eugene Jousse, producer, Mary Howell, secretary, Dick Hunter, dance director, Bas Brewster, publicity coordinator, Gordie Pollock, master carpenter, and Joe Duffin, stage manager and electrician.

The writers are at present making up a script book from the contributions received from students on the campus. It has been decided that there will be no definite plot, but rather a basic theme to provide the continuity.

EARLY CASTING.

Due to the early date of production, casting will take place before the Christmas holidays in order that rehearsals may start as soon as the second term begins. It is hoped that an even bigger student representation will be attained than last year, when over 150 students had a hand in the show.

This will be the second revue after the wartime lapse, and the executive feels that with the experience gained from last year's production added to the many original ideas which have been brought forward, this year's show should prove one of the most original yet to appear on the campus.

Political Econ. Club to Hear Prof. Brady

Professor Brady, distinguished University of Toronto political scientist and co-author of "Canada After The War," will be the guest speaker at the second meeting of the McGill Political Economy Club to be held tomorrow evening in the Union Grill Room starting at 8:00 p.m., according to present plans released by the club's executive last night.

The second meeting of the group was originally intended to be on a subject of technical interest to political economists, but through the kind assistance of Professor Keirstead, the Club was fortunate in being able to obtain Professor Brady to address the meeting and the original program was shelved for the time being.

Professor Brady, who studied at Oxford, has written a host of articles, contributed to various symposia but is perhaps best known for his work with the Canadian Institute of International Affairs. He is rated as one of the ablest academic orators in Canada and his lectures are noted for their brilliant style of speech.

The meeting will be open to members and non-members of the club and will afford all those who were previously unable to acquaint themselves with the Political Economy Club an opportunity for so doing. After the address, the floor will be thrown open for discussion.

Expansion of Facilities

The silver lining that proverbially lurks in every dark cloud broke through the general fog of overcrowded college facilities yesterday when plans were released for the expansion of most of the major buildings on the campus. University officials are to be complimented indeed for the all-inclusiveness and scope of activity to be undertaken to fill a need that has become most pressing over the past year.

As far as undergraduates are concerned, the highlights of the programme are the proposed additions to the residential facilities of McGill. Royal Victoria College is to be expanded threefold, while two wings to the home-like Douglas Hall Residence are also to be built. For students from out of town, who often find boarding-house life lacking in companionship, the new accommodations are indeed a boon. Within the student-body at large, it provides a nucleus of active, well-organized undergraduates to whom college life is far more than just a mere continuation of high school studies.

It would also seem that those in charge of McGill's destinies are determined to retain McGill's pre-eminence in the field of medicine, a distinction which is largely responsible for the worldwide reputation of this University. A new building south of the present Medical edifice will give future medical and pre-medical students ample room in which to pursue their chosen profession with the advantages of the most modern of equipment.

Doubling of the Redpath Library, long rumoured, will now become a reality, while the addition of an electronic wing to the south side of the Physics Building will help to maintain McGill's position as a distinguished centre of research and study. The new swimming pool and rink auditorium as the completing links in the War memorial are also on the building agenda.

It is heartening to see that McGill is accepting unflinchingly the burdens and responsibilities which our present era have thrust upon her and the confident optimism of University authorities in the future destiny of this seat of learning are reflected in the magnitude of the undertaking. It is, of course, economically prudent that actual building operations will be undertaken as soon as present conditions have reached a state of at least relative normality, and it is to be sincerely hoped that this time may be measured in brief months rather than years. — H.S.

Here's Something You Should Know

compiled by R. Pearcey

The university was saddened last week by the sudden resignation of Effie Pott, head coach of the Second Year Knit team. Kindly old "Mother" Pott, as she was affectionately called by the girls, left because of differences with university officials over the use of aluminum needles in interfaculty competition. Up until last week's match, which Second Year lost to Engineers by a score of 58 completed pin-wipers to 45, "Mother" Pott refused to allow her knitters the use of metal needles, claiming that speed knitting would thus be made an extremely dangerous sport. Graduates have insisted, however, that plastic or bone needles are hopelessly antiquated, and have recently pressed for entire reorganization of the McGill knitting set up.

Kindly, greying "Mother" Pott, when asked for comment, looked up from a tear-stained unfinished stomach warmer, and said: "Those dirty rats. I ought to kick their teeth in."

The Campus Pressure Group meets tonight. Topic for discussion: "Immediate Action on the Bren." Plan to attend. Professors with a knowledge of atom bomb construction cordially welcomed.

Professor Horace Gillyflower announces that his textbook, "Sociology for the Idiot", is being reprinted in plenty of time for next year's course in Abnormal Sociology. Written in interesting style, and attractively bound in old term papers, the reprinted 3000-page volume will render all copies of the 1946 edition obsolete. "There ain't nothin' new in it," said Prof. Gillyflower, "and it won't help you pass the exam. Frankly, I need the dough."

Price to students, $14.83 plus two meat coupons.

Notice: All students sincerely interested in holding weekly discussion groups and intellectual soirees on topics of cultural interest, are asked to gather in the Psychology Department at the tea hour today. Heads will be examined.

Mr. Ira Rut announced yesterday that he and the bloc of veterans which he heads are plotting the overthrow of the President of the Veterans Society. Mr. Rut feels that he is extremely well qualified for the position, mainly as he himself is not a Veteran, and can therefore view all disputes calmly and objectively, and secondly, because of his administrative experience gained in heading his large campus bloc.

"I'm by far the biggest bloc head on the campus," he iterated yesterday, "and don't let any pressure group tell you otherwise." Rut the Bloc Head for President will be the party slogan.

Mots Cuits

FORGE promises this year to give us a rejuvenated review containing poetry, plays, short stories, and articles by McGill students. Needed are contributions of all descriptions so that the editors may have something to edit, and the readers something interesting to read. To our contributors, critics and subscribers, then, write your best—and let us read it in the Forge. (Contributions must be in by December 15—no subjects are forbidden.)

We found on our desk this morning a hokku—a form of Japanese poetry consisting of seventeen syllables arranged in three lines—the first five, then seven, then five. In its original form the hokku is particularly musical. A gentleman named Icerici claims this to be a hokku in English:

Dark night is low'ring
Filling my soul with shadows
For I am alone

Perhaps our Japanese readers (if we have any) can write us the criticism of this effort. We, rather shakily, cannot agree with the doctrine of writing exactly seventeen syllables which are therefore poetry, for the sake of.

IF you have read the "Spoon River Anthology", by one Edgar Lee Masters, you will recognise the following parody:

Samuel Dook

My story is a common one,
Coming here I honoured in an Arts Degree
And could read Anglo-Saxon freely;
I even wrote a limerick in it once.
After four years I won a scholarship; went to the States

Where I obtained the customary Master's,
A passport to seven years of teaching freshmen.
My mother murmured, "It would be so nice
If Sam could get his Ph. D."
My father snorted, and apprenticed me
(With no regard for erudite accomplishments)
Into his business, which is making shoes.
Now I hunt references in Shakespeare
To advertise the durability of Dook's Shoes,
And trace the evolution of the word 'last'
Back to its Anglo-Saxon origin.

—P.H.A.

For the as-yet-not-read-Masters we add that his anthology consisted of stories and anecdotes of people who had died . . . Can we say: "One look at Dook; We said, How Dead!" . . . pro patri mori . . .

BOMBO SINGERS will rejoice in this latest lyric of the unbridled O.C.M. entitled, "The Bashful Bees":
we is the little bees
we buzzes thru the forus altho we do not talk so good you need not all ignore us

Fraternization In Japan

—by Fred Vosburg

Once the pressure of routine military duties on the American troops in Japan began to lessen somewhat they started to look around for means of reducing the tedium of life in an occupied country. Consequently the problem of fraternization arose.

On the basis of their experience in Europe American authorities took a hands-off attitude toward this question. "Let the men adopt a mode of behaviour compatible with their own consciences," they reasoned. The men did just that. Their viewpoint was generously uninhibited by any conflicting ideas of politics and sex. One had nothing to do with the other. It was on that premise that all their subsequent behaviour was based.

Each individual resolved his own approach to the subject, but the matter as a whole can be listed under general headings. Basically it was dependent upon the degree of amusement desired.

Let us first consider the Geisha. Prior to the occupation the Geisha was represented in the American mind as a rather grotesque figure swathed in the traditional gaudy kimono, with mountains of jet black hair piled high on the head. Despite the nature of her task, she was nevertheless shrouded with a degree of respectability borne of her position as a curiosity. During the initial stages of the occupation Geisha houses were centres of concentrated interest precipitated by inquisitiveness or what have you. Matters raced merrily along until the disease factor cropped up. As a consequence they were all placed off limits to Americans and this regulation was rigidly enforced.

Certain enterprising Japanese appreciating the American's natural desire for entertainment set up large ballrooms and stocked them with attractive Japanese hostesses. They were operated on a taxi-dance basis. The girls appeared nightly clad in appealing evening gowns. Under the patient tutelage of the American GI they were quick to pick up the latest American dancing styles. Music was provided by a Japanese orchestra whose repertoire of state-side music was strictly pre-Pearl Harbour. MP's were often in attendance to escort the girls home after the dance. Nothing stronger than Coca-Cola was ever served in any of these places. The most notable establishment of this type is located in the heart of Tokyo and is called "The Oasis of the Ginza".

Americans were hardly content to manifest their affections on a solely institutional level and so with a commendable display of free enterprise they sought to make contacts on an individual basis. Armed with adequate quantities of chocolate, cigarettes and natural charm they sallied forth determined to come to grips with the Japanese female. "Colbilo" is the Japanese word for girl friend or sweetheart. Before many months had elapsed the Americans had acquainted themselves with the meaning of the word in all its many oriental aspects.

What effect all this interaction will have upon the moral structure of the Japanese women is merely a matter of conjecture. As far as the Americans are concerned it is only a touch-and-go relationship. One fact stands out, however, and that is that the population of Niseis in the world is definitely on the upswing.

THIS TAKES PRACTICE

Our demon artist has exaggerated for the sake of emphasis. Tramping opponents underfoot is not recommended... but constant practice is. Skill in shooting "basketballs" may come naturally to some... but must have to work at it.

Practice sensible money management too, while you are at college. A first principle is to spend no more . . . and preferably less than you earn. Another is to bank what you can, regularly, even though individual deposits may be small. We welcome your account.

The Daily Says:

'Intercollegiate Sports Beneficial To McGill'

"It is better to light one small candle than to curse the darkness."

What is the athletic policy regarding Intercollegiate sports at McGill University? Who determines this policy? What is the purpose of Intercollegiate athletics? These are just a few of the queries which every student must be able to answer before he or she can begin to comprehend the fundamental issues which The Daily intends to discuss in this series of articles. For it is essential that the student body familiarize itself with the basic problems which hamper intercollegiate athletics at McGill, and thus be prepared to exert what influence it can in seeking a remedy.

THE OBJECTIVES

What are the objectives of intercollegiate athletics? We believe that they are as follows:

1) To foster "college spirit". That is, to furnish the students and alumni with a common interest in McGill, to instill in them a sense of pride in their University, and to provide an outlet for their natural exuberance which at the same time keeps McGill foremost in their minds.

2) To publicize the University throughout the country. Intercollegiate athletics provides a very effective medium for keeping a college in the public eye. An excellent example of this is Notre Dame, which became famed through its fabulous football teams, and thus succeeded in attracting students from all over the continent. Several of Notre Dame's most wealthy benefactors are graduates who would never have attended the school were it not for its highly-publicized athletic endeavours. This point is of extreme importance at McGill, which relies on private financial support to exist.

SOURCE OF FUNDS

3) To provide a source of revenue for the University. There is no doubt that intercollegiate athletics, when properly organized and publicized, attract huge crowds, willing to part with a few dollars to absorb the glamour and excitement of college sports. There are several universities in the USA who have been set on their feet financially through money derived from their athletic program.

4) To provide funds for the maintenance of so-called minor sports. The whole athletic program is aided substantially by the financial aid received from the money-making sports.

5) To furnish training in sportsmanship, teamwork, etc., for the competitors. The value of athletics for the individual has been adequately demonstrated time and again, and need not be discussed further here.

LACK OF FUNDS

The above are what we believe are the main objectives of intercollegiate athletics. They are commendable and desirable objectives. That McGill University is willing to derive the benefits of intercollegiate athletics is not open to doubt. That McGill University is willing to grant intercollegiate athletics the moral and financial support they merit is questionable.

The athletics policy is limited by the amount of money allotted to the sports program by the University. That the athletics department should be forced to be miserly and penny-pinching in its activities because of lack of funds is deplorable. In future articles we shall discuss this unhappy state of affairs, and suggest what we believe is the most promising solution.

Gelineau Again Red Goaler Won Letters in Three Sports

By ALEC MACINTYRE
(Daily Staff Writer.)

Jack Gelineau is the steady, reliable type of goaler; he supplied much of the confidence that made the Redmen Intercollegiate champs last year.

He starts his second full season as Number One netminder for Dave Campbell's outfit but his sports experience goes much farther back than that and covers the full range of Athletics. Before en-

Not content with starring in the nets for Canucks, Jack also played forward in the old Mount Royal Junior league where he ended a successful season among the top point getters.

This auspicious start was interrupted by the war. Jack joined the Air Force, emerged with the BEM. While in the service he played goals for the RCAF in the tering McGill he had already established a good reputation in Hockey, Basketball and Rugby.

A native of Toronto, Jack came to Montreal before he was old enough to realize the wisdom of such a move. After living in Westmount for some years the family crossed the mountain to Model City where the Gelineaus still reside.

THREE LETTER MAN

Jack's sport star began to ascend while he was a student at Catholic High School where he earned colours in his three favourite sports, Hockey, Basketball and Rugby. After graduation he stuck closer to Hockey than to the other games. He traded the Black and White for the Bleu-Blanc-Rouge of Wilfrid Cude's Canadiens in the J.A.H.A. It was from Cude that he learned most of the tricks of the trade.

now defunct NDHL against many of his present teammates.

PROSPECTIVE HOOPSTERS

An all around athlete, Jack spent the past summer playing first base for the Mt. Royal entry in the City Senior Baseball League and hopes to play on McGill's Basketball squad this winter. How he will reconcile the Hockey and Basketball schedules is a problem that he has not yet solved but Basketball will probably have to take a back seat.

Around the Intercollegiate circuit Jack is the most respected puck-stopper. He earned his reputation by stopping the star-studded Varsity club who featured such accurate snipers as Halder, Kossick and Bauer.

What else does Jack do at McGill? He's in first year Commerce having switched from Science.

Red and White Vie With Canadian-U.S. Tonight at M.A.A.A.

Heavy Competition Expected; Prep For Intercollegiate Meets

Tonight sees the start of the M.A.A.A.'s International Invitation Squash Tournament with five McGill men fighting it out with entries from Philadelphia, New York, Buffalo, Toronto and Montreal. Carrying the Redmen's colours into the fight will be Dave Culver, Pete Landry, Andy LeMesurier, Guy MacFarlane and Colin Stairs. This is the first big squash tournament of the season in North America and is considered an important warm-up for the American and Canadian Nationals.

Last year's final was one of the most thrilling in the history of Montreal squash when American champion Charlie Brinton was defeated in extra points in the fifth and final game by Stan Pearson of Philadelphia. Both Stan and Charlie played on the Princeton Squash team, and both won the American Intercollegiate Squash Championship. In 1941 Charlie surprised the whole squash world by entering the American Nationals as an unknown Princeton undergraduate and walked off with the honours.

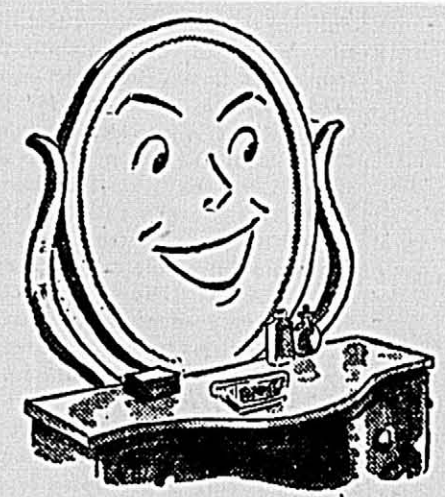

He repeated in 1942 and 1946. It was through the contact made here last year with Brinton, that McGill was able to enter the American Intercollegiate and lay the groundwork for big things in the future. Both these players are slated for play on Saturday morning.

TO PLAY U. S. TEAMS

On December 7-8 the Red team of five men will be starting the Intercollegiate schedule by playing at Harvard, M.T. and it is hoped Amherst. This will be an acid test for the McGill boys and should they defeat Harvard it would be a real feather in their caps, for the Harvards with their 90 courts were famous throughout the thirties for their well-nigh unbeatable squash squads.

All teams will be chosen by means of the squash ladder which will be hung in the men's locker room. At present a list is there to be signed by anyone wishing to play on the ladder and even if your calibre of play won't get you a position on the A or B team it is a good opportunity for you to get good games with players of your own speed. So let's sign up! The first twelve men will be able to be challenged two up at a time, while the rest will be able to jump up five by each McGill team, with the A ber 20th, and the B team on Wednesday, November 27th.

A VETERAN'S ORGANIZATION
4665 Hutchison Street

Peterson's Pioneers

Lachine Group Find Life In Barracks 'Not Bad at All'

By BOB MACINTOSH
Following a period of brisk internecine electoral warfare, the Peterson Residence Students' committee has got an organization underway with a large majority of support from the residents. Life off the campus is settling into a regular routine, and the general consensus of opinion is that "it's not bad at all." Except for that confounded trip into town. But even that is not so bad now that a private bus service has been arranged, thanks to the arduous efforts of Professor Hare, the Warden.

Three of these are more or less filled with married veterans, while the fourth has finally been converted to double-room quarters for the single fellows. A considerable number of empty two-room suites are still to be seen in all buildings however. These are still available for occupancy, and more couples are coming in at the rate of about four per week. The total population has now reached the 200 mark, of which the vast majority are married couples, many with children.

Life centers around and between the comings and goings of the Montreal Sightseeing buses which leave at 8.15 and 9.15 in the morning, returning at 5.15 and 6.15 at night. The early o'clock student will have seen these marvelous symptoms of modern science cruising across the campus to the Arts building steps in recent days. Coming to a smart halt, it spews forth an unlimited number of students, to say nothing of wives who work in the city.
